CHAPTER XVII. AFTERWARDS.

Jerry came early to speak to my parents. Father gave his consent readily, heartily and with a blessing-he had come pretty near in those days, to the realization of his dreams of Rocky Bend as a paradise, and I think I never sawhim. more thoroughly happy, Mother did not object, but stipulated that we should wait at least a year before our marriage, since we were both so young. To this proposition Jerry the more readily consented on account of the tour of Europe which he could now promise me, but which business would require him to postpone. Soon after this I went with him to the farm, to be introduced as his promised bride. Raplee received me with emotion, put his arms around me and kissed me.

"I shall be glad to call you daughter, Charity." Mrs. Raplee was less demonstrative and, I thought, really colder, but that was not surprising, for it was the oldime affection for mother that caused her nusband to receive me so warmly, while she had none of this. It was impossible for her, too, to forget father's business and want of money. I think she liked me imprinted a soft kiss on my cheek and were single.

"Over I no, it isn't," said Susy, hasten ing out of the corner where she had receremony yet, and I'd like to see how ful jolly to have him for a brother. Chatty will look as my own new cousin." "So should I" replied Jerry, and gracefully complied with her request. "Now tell me that you like your cousin." "She knows all about that," Susy said, throwing her arms around my neck and Agent for Morton's Gold Pens, and kissing me again. Then nestling close, "Is it nice to be grown up and begoing to be married?" Jerry answered. "You will know by and by, when somebody presents you to his friends."

"Oh, Robert won't have to do that. There won't be anybody but his mother. I guess, and she'll know me by that "Robert!" exclaimed Jerry.

"Susy insists that she is going to mar-Robert Summerland," said Fanny

"Well, I like him. There isn't anybody else in the world that I like so well, except our folks. That's settled." This remark created much merriment, and Cousin Raplee told Susy she had made a good choice. There would come a time when she could be proud to claim Robert even as a friend.

What made my face grow suddenly I was anxious to keep our engagement a secret; Jerry did not care, but rather seemed to want to have it known. We called upon Nellie and he told her, whereupon she became pale as death and, though controlling herself well, was not quite the same afterwards, and we came away earlier than we had intended. "Did Nellie seem really cordial to-night

Jerry asked when we were in the street. "Before you came we used to be the best of friends, and she is so true, and likes you so much, that I thought she would heartily approve of my choice." "Were you never more than friends?

Tell me that, Jerry."
"Jealous so soon?" The idea seemed to please him. "Of course we were not. Neither of us ever thought of anything more, and when you came"—but I must ot tell what he said further.

How strange it seemed that I should e the one chosen instead of Nellie. If Jerry could have been at all influenced have been, certainly. His motives were

Now, since we had moved, our house was only three doors from Mr. Webster's and I flattered myself that Nellie and I should see each other often. The next day the intelligence came that she was in this, that if one frankly owns to such ill, and glad as I should have been to go a fondness for himself as all of us have, to her, I dared not. Then it was said that she was better, again, not as well, THE FACTS about this Grant are Low that her health had been for some time may not one speak the truth to hix aself failing, and that she was going a short | and of himself as he finds it ? journey, hoping to gain strength there-

After much hesitation I went to Nellie and found her looking better than I had been led to expect. Evidently she did not care much to see me, but thought it best, and endeavored to make me believe that her illness was of no serious nature, only brought on by a little over exertion, and would soon pass away. But once in speaking of it, in a moment of forgetfulness, she seemed so utterly unlike her usual cheerful self that I could not help expressing my sympathy. "I am sorry for you, Nellie!" She looked steadfastly into my eyes. You mean more than any one else has meant in saying that. You understand me, then, and despise me."

"Indeed, I do not despise you. I only wish I were as good and true as you are. If there is anything that I understand, no one else shall know it from me, and you have my sympathy. I hope you do not blame me."

"No," speaking slowly and looking "But I despise myself for this grateful. and shall soon live it down. I ought not to have been so weak. The subject was dropped there, never again to be alluded to between us. I betray no confidence of Nellie's in writing this now. The matter of our engagement was pretty well canvassed in the village gossip. I hardly dared to see Mrs. Summerland at all, did not go to her house, but sent her messages and little gifts instead, and was usually preoccupied and hurried when we chanced to meet. That, however, was not often. She alone of our old neighbors made no comment that reached my ears. One of them said "She's" the proudest girl that ever set fut upon the ground, and a prouder family ye niver'll find." Another remarked in a

In the same letter came the starthing intelligence that she was to become a physician. This was her father's profession; her love for his studies pleased him, and he had taken delight in instructing her; but the determination to become a practitioner was new. She would attend lectures in the

Was it not absurd, I questioned, for her who would cry herself sick over such a change in my circumstances, to think of acquiring the fortitude essential to the successful performance of difficult and painful operations? She had by nature such a fear of death as to be able to take no comfort in a room where a dead body had lain, if she knew it, but was preparing to fight death, and go with her patients down to its very jaws, seeking to save them. This apparent contradiction

I could not understand. It did not appear that she havd any special belief in phrenology, but she had just had her head examined again and her character written out. Her fon dness for thus seeing herself portrayed was like her fondness for looking in a mirror which was indulged not so much because it was her own face she saw, as because it was a pleasant face met hers, and she liked to look into the pleasant faces. ### Signs of Madness in Dogs.

The British Medical Journal calls atcention to the measures recommended by the Council of Hygiene of Gordeaux, for the better protection of peopleagainst the dangers of hydrophobia. It is well known that the madness of dogs has a period which is premonitory and harmless. If these periods were generally known, the dogs could be put out of the way before they become dangerous. On this subject the Council of Hygiene has issued the following instructions:

A short time, sometimes two days, after madness has sized a dog, it creates symptoms in the animal which it is in-spensable to recognize.

1. There is agitation and restlessness and the dog turns himself continually in his kennel. If he be at liberty, he goes and comes, and seems to be seeking something; then he remains motionless, as if waiting; then starts bites the air as if he would catch a fly, and dashes himself howling and barking against the wall. The voice of his master dissipates these nallucinations; the dog obeys, but slowly, with hesitation, as if with regret.

2. He does not try to bite; he is gentle, even affectionate, and he eats and drinks; but gnaws the litter, the ends of curtains, and padding of cushions, the coverlids of the beds, carpets, &c.

3. By the movement of his paws about the sides of his open mouth, one might think he was trying to free his throat of

4. His voice undergoes such a change that it is impossible not to be struck

5. The dog begins to fight with other dogs; this is a decidedly characteristic sign, if the dog be generally peaceful.

The three symptoms last mentioned indicate an advanced period of the disease, and that the dog may become dangerous at any moment, if immediate measures are not taken. It is best to chain him up at once, or better still to KEELER'S SANITY .- A reporter of the Troy Press, who knew Albert Keeler, murderer of Ida Spencer, intimately, says he was not of a revengeful disposition, but thinks he was insane. He tells this story:

"One day, when he, with some of his fellows, was standing on the dock, under the long bridge, he fell into the river. He went down and passed under three barges, one ahead of the other, and then came to the surface, climbed up on the dock, and went home. When he appeared at the door his eyes were large and glaring. He could give no account his ordinary mind, and from this it is any case. Try it. C. W. Snow & Co., plausible to assume that he was not in Wholesale Agents, Syracuse, N. That an unconverted person who has joined the church should want to dance, is quite natural; but that a man who is born of God, with his sweet relish of divine things, that he should care about dancing, is simply a moral contradiction. Would such sainted characters as Samuel Rutherford, Dr. Payson, and Dr. Skinner want to dance? Perhaps you will answer not for they were ministers. But if dancing is right, just as praying and holy living is right, why should not ministers engage in it as well

> Indeed, if this dancing mania is to be Christian life, then the whole Church Sabbath that the prayer meeting will be on a certain evening, just to say that the dancing will be on a certain evening. Then instead of hiring a dancing-master, not to know the moving art, they can at which time there might be a number of holy fiddlers, with the minister to lead in prayer. Certainly, if dancing is right, this is the way to give it character; this is the way to conduct it. I am quite sure, however, that it will not be con-

2nd. Skillfull and experienced Millers, only are employed, and customers will always find them good natured and ready to attend to orders.

3rd. You can always have your work done, promptly, the same day you bring it, thereby avoiding the inconvenience of having to come a second time

Having

7 Run of Stone, and sufficient power to crowd them,

We are never CLOGGED, and no NO CUSTOM WORK has to be left over NIGHT.

4th. By having separate runs or stone for different kinds of grain, we are enabled to give better satisfaction than any Mill can, which runs Wheat and Feed through the same hopper.

5th. We have in operation two first-class Corn Shellers, whereby you can have your corn shelled quickly and perfectly without extra charge.

6th. You can always get the highest market price for all kinds of grain at the Toronto Mills. 7th. You can buy Flour, Feed, Shorts, Shipping, Screenings, and, in fact, anything pertaining to our business, in large or small quantities, at or below Oswego prices. 8th. All our work is wARRAN-

CORNS Are the most plentiful kind of grain in the CORNS market. Every one has a supply, from the the little three-year old child to the aged grandsire verging on to a hundred; stylish, handsome young ladies who daily promenade fashionable resorts, middle-aged matrons; old maids, dressed up to appear young and gay; dandles, with their patent leathers kid gloves and inevitable walking stick; the clergyman, merchant, lawyer, clerk, artisan and mechanic, of all ages and stations, have a full supply of corns, bunions, bad nails and other botherations of the feet, all of which are banished and cured by the use of Briggs's Corn and Bunion Remedies, Alleviator and Curative.

PILES ! PILES, INTERNAL, EXTERNAL, BLEEDING OR ITCHING.—The intense suffering occasioned by the disease, in various forms, is known only to those who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted with it. The sleepless nights, the uncomfortable days, the haggard looks of the sufferer bear witness of the intensity of the pain experienced when troubled with the prevailing disease. The success of Briggs' Pile Remedy as a positive cure is unequaled in the annals of medicine.—Relief is immediate when used as directed. The immense demand for this great remedy is unparalelled. Thousands are using it with the most satisfactory results. Sold by all Druggists.—Sold at Huntington and Taylor's Drug Stores.

CORNS, Bunions, Bad Nails and all Diseases of the Piles, &c., skillfully and successfully treated at the great central Chirropodical and Healing Institute, 697 Broadway, New York.

Prospectus for 1873 Sixth Year. The Aldine,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World, A. Representative and Champion of American Taste.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores. Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature: and a collection of pictures the rarest specimen of artistic skill, in black and white. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume absolutely without competition in price or haracter. The possessor of a complete volume annot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are Art Department.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; and the plans for the coming year as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce descriptions and the price of the publishers are authorized to announce description. The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America. In addition, THE ALDINE will reprodu examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis's inimitable child sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July, and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christians" numbers with

As the usefulness and attractions of THE AL-DINE can be enhanced in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publish-ers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparalleled offer of Premium Chromos For 1873. Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every depart. tion of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE.)

The Literary Department will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

The Aldine will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, are not in cases where the certificate is given, bearexcept in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of James Sutton & AGENTS WANTED.
